

The New York Post to Electeds:
Think Carefully

"After all, it's worth thinking carefully before hitting up already tax-besieged New Yorkers with yet another fee."

That's the message the New York Post makes clear when it editorializes, "pols famously resort to bait-and-switch with these kind of funding schemes, finding ways to divert "dedicated" fees."

The Post editorial also agrees with the concern raised by the Keep NYC Congestion Tax Free coalition:

"Former Councilman Walter McCaffrey, representing a group opposed to the fees, asks (wisely): "How are you going to legally guarantee that there are no shenanigans?"

Read the full editorial at http://www.nypost.com/seven/02032008/postopinion/editorials/car_fee_green_ligt_413183.htm