Fighting to End the Congestion Toll Tax

Congestion pricing is a slap in the face to Long Islanders who already navigate record high inflation, increasing property taxes, and MTA fare hikes.

Congressman Anthony D'Esposito introduced H.Res.609 – comprehensive legislation rejecting New York Governor Kathy Hochul's Congestion Pricing Plan that would charge commuters up to $23 a day to drive through lower Manhattan.

H.Res.609 highlights concerns about the economic burden on small businesses, calls for an economic impact report, and recommends halting the program's implementation by relevant federal agencies and the State of New York.

Congressman Anthony D'Esposito's anti-congestion pricing legislation has received bipartisan support from members of Congress from both major parties.
